SELLER'S GUIDE

TIMELINE OF A HOME SALE

YOUR GUIDE TO THE HOME SELLING PROCESS

Are you considering selling your home? Or maybe you're just curious about its value?

This guide is intended to help you get ready and understand the selling process so you can make the best choices for yourself and your family.

The days of putting a sign in the yard and selling our experience, many homeowners think that all REALTORS® do the same thing. If you've talked to more than one REALTOR®, then you probably have a similar perception.

But at Avanti Way, it's not just about what we do that is different... it's also how well we do it. We use innovative strategies for selling your home in this current housing market.

Over the next several pages, we will outline the skills, strategies, and actions that enable us to achieve these results. Read on, or for a personal conversation about your specific situation, reach out to us for a free consultation.

PRICING YOUR HOME

You may have heard that there is not much housing inventory in [market] right now, which means that prices are high across the board. This is great news for you as a home seller! The timing is perfect for you to get a strong return on your investment in your home.

But even in today's market, there are still homes that sit, waiting for an offer, for months and months. This time spent on the Multiple Listing Service (MLS) means that you are still making payments on your mortgage and you are still not getting equity out of your home.

Perhaps even worse is what buyers and buyer agents think about homes that have been on the market for too long. The first impression a buyer gets about a property that has been listed for a long time in this hot market is "Something must be wrong with that home."

That thought will scare away many buyers, and it will prompt the ones who remain interested to try to lowball you when they submit an offer on your home.

But why are those homes still on the market in the first place? It's because they are often priced "out of the market." Take a look at this graph to see what we mean:

PRICING YOUR HOME

The intersection of the two axes — price and preparation — represents homes “in the market.” These are properties that are priced competitively and prepared nicely, and these are the homes that will net the most money for their sellers.

As you move farther away from the intersection, the homes become too pricey and in too much disrepair. These homes show poorly and are basically guaranteed not to sell.

The homes hovering near the middle of the graph, represented by the question marks, are in a sort of "limbo land." They are priced just a bit over their market worth, or they are not adequately prepared to show. These properties are the ones that will stay on the market for months and months, ultimately selling for way under the initial asking price and causing their sellers a lot of time and frustration.

If this sounds complicated, don't worry. We at [company] have a specific strategy that will help you avoid the dreaded limbo land of home sales and keep your home "in the market."

More on that in the coming pages.

PREPARATION IS KEY

Buyers are easily distracted, and they will tend to focus on the negatives instead of the positives of each home they tour. Each dish left in the sink or dust bunny in the corner is going to detract from the perceived value of your home, which means a lower offer amount and more time on the market for you.

3. STAGING

According to a recent study by the National Association of REALTORS®, 96% of buyer agents reported that staging had some effect on their clients' view of homes. They said that staging made it easier for their clients to visualize the properties as a future home and that they were more likely to overlook property faults.

And these effects turned into cash for sellers like you. The survey reveals that 52% of buyer clients were willing to offer more on a staged home than a similar home that was not staged — as much as 20% more than asking price!

PROPERTY MARKETING

In the “old days,” real estate agents marketing their sellers’ properties would simply put a sign in the yard, put a listing in the MLS, and pray that it sold. Even today, there are a lot of real estate professionals who think syndicating listings to portals is a job well done.

And that might actually be enough to sell your home in today’s hot market. But if that’s all an agent does to market your home to potential buyers, then they’re not fulfilling their fiduciary responsibility to you — to get you the most money possible for your home.

You see, you have a distinct advantage in wanting to sell your home right now: there is not much inventory, but there are a ton of buyers. A smart agent will use this classic example of supply and demand to create an auction environment for your home.

Getting multiple offers on your home will allow you to choose the best one for you — the one that has the right price, the right timeline, and the right conditions. And the key to creating this auction environment to get multiple offers is marketing.

At Avanti Way Realty, we employ a strategic Property Marketing Plan that uses the latest technologies to seed the marketplace, optimize for Search Engine Optimization (SEO), and position your home for the best possible impression right out of the gate. For example, we pen compelling marketing narratives to help buyers envision living in your home and we utilize advanced video marketing tactics to showcase your home's best features.

And our efforts don't stop once your home has been listed. We use our national network of agents to continuously promote your home to people wanting to move to the area and we run targeted social media ads to help get your home in front of the most people.
